

The present invention relates to a novel transmembrane receptor protein which is specific to the mammalian epididymis, DNA sequences which code for the protein and specific ligands and to the use thereof for the preparation of agents for diagnosis of male infertility and for controlling maturation of spermatozoa.